JAMAICA GINGER

Causes Intoxication, and Man Who Imbibed Is Fined in Police Court.

(Special to The Herald-Republican.)
Ogden, Dec. 12.—That there is as much violation of the law in becoming drunk on Jamaica ginger as in imbibing too freely of common Twenty-fifth street whiskey was the effect of a ruling handed down by Judge J. D. Murphy in the police court this morning when the magistrate fined David L. Partland $5 for being intoxicated.

The prisoner explained that he had not secured any liquor on Sunday, and showed a Jamaica ginger bottle to testify this assertion, but as soon as he was judged that the extract contained sixty-three per cent alcohol he asked him the $5 fine.

Ed Fitzsimmons, formerly a watchman in the Hartman yards, who was fined under arrest when he brought another man to the station last night, 40th being drunk, was fined $10 for trying to conceal weapons. DECISION IN FAVOR OF INSURANCE COMPANY

Judge Howell Says Notes Given in Payment for Policy Should Be Paid.

(Special to The Herald-Republican.)
Ogden, Dec. 12.—A memorandum of his decision in the suit brought by the United Reserve Life Insurance company against Edward H. LaLonde, to recover on three promissory notes, has been prepared by Judge J. A. Howell and laid before the court.

The company claimed that De LaLonde had given three notes in payment of an annual premium on a life insurance policy, refusing to pay the notes when he was notified that there was no consideration stated in the instruments. The defendant also put in counter claim for $7,116, said to have been paid the plaintiff in premiums.

Judge Howell held that because the defendant held the policy, issued to him until the time of the beginning of the suit, when they were delivered to his attorney, who in turn lost them, he waived his right to release from contract because of youth. Also, that he considered the notes as being the act of at least one of the notes.

WICCOUGHS CAUSE AGELESS MAN'S DEATH

Jens P. Anderson Suffers From Peculiar Malady Three Weeks Before He Dies.

(Special to The Herald-Republican.)
Ephraim, Dec. 12.—Seized with hicoughs three weeks ago, Jens P. Anderson, a pioneer of this district, hicoughed constantly until death ended his suffering yesterday. The aged man literally hicoughed himself to death.

Though advanced in years, Mr. Anderson possessed a rugged constitution and was apparently in the best of health until seized with the peculiar malady that resulted in his death.

Every known remedy was brought into requisition in an effort to stop the patient's hicoughing, but without avail, and the spasmodic jerking of the diaphragm continued until he died of sheer exhaustion.

Mr. Anderson was born in Denmark January 14, 1828. While in his native land he learned the trade of a miller, which he followed for some time, after which he served two years in the army. He joined the Mormon church in 1852 and came to Utah a few months later, crossing the plains in an ox train under Captain Olsen, arriving in Salt Lake City in 1854. Later he came to this city and assisted in the building of the fort and took an active part in the Black Hawk war. In 1862 he moved to Glenwood, and was among the first settlers there. A home was built there by him, but he was driven out by the Indians. Anderson returned to Ephraim in 1866 and engaged in farming, which he continued until his death.

This industry has afforded employment to a number of foreigners in addition to available help at home. Thus Centerfield can boast of an industry that is properly handled and is a great benefit to the community. This year it has been the central place for the handling of sugar beets, and the sugar industry has been left with the farmers for their seed. There are only about ten families in the community, but they are all independent and living on farms well stocked.

Bishop Charles Brent of the Philippine Islands; Dr. Hamilton Wright of China; Charles D. Tenney, Chinese secretary of the American legation at Peking.

The nations that have accepted the invitation, besides the United States, are China, Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands, Persia, Portugal, Russia and Spain.

ORCHARDISTS TO HOLD CONVENTION

Effort Will Be Made to Organize Apple Growers' Congress.

Denver, Colo., Dec. 12.—Orchardists throughout the country will be interested in the efforts of Colorado fruit growers to create a permanent organization, to be known as the American Apple congress, with the object of bringing orchardists together annually from all sections of the country where this fruit is raised, to discuss matters of importance and mutual interest.

The first congress is to be held in this city December 15, 16 and 17, and each is the interest in the undertaking that an invitation has been issued by Governor John F. Shaffroth of Colorado to all apple-producing sections of the United States and Canada to send delegates to the congress.

The congress will be an important event in the apple world. Interest in the meeting is not confined to the growers of the western states, but extends to the apple states of the east as well. It has been well said that "in the west the scientific culture of fruit has reached a high state of perfection," and there is no doubt that apple growers of the eastern and northern states can learn many lessons in culture from the western growers. The fame of the Colorado apple has extended around the world, and it is fitting that the first American apple congress should be held in Denver.

Fruit growing on a large scale in Colorado is of comparatively recent origin. The first fruit trees planted on the western slope are still standing and are growing crops. These are Elberta peach trees, and were planted about twenty-five years ago. The Indians were still in the neighborhood, but shortly afterward they were removed to a reservation in Utah, and the great Uncompahgre valley, which had been the home of the tribe for no one knows how long, entered into complete possession of the white man.

Pushing to the Front.

The development of the fruit industry in Colorado had its real beginning in 1899, when system and science is taken into consideration. Before the commercial fruit growing can be traced back as far as 1880. Therefore, within ten years Colorado has pushed herself into the front rank of apple-producing states, and at the same time gained a great reputation as a producer of peaches and other fruits.

Care of Orchards.

Fighting Frost, Standardizing and Systematizing the Grading and Packing Rules, Planning and Securing Legislation intended to benefit the industry, Securing Equitable Freight and Express Rates for Shipments to the Markets of the Country.

The question of orchard heating is one that has received considerable attention in Colorado. Throughout the great fruit belt on the western slope, as well as in other important districts, oil and coal pots were kept burning at night during the period of late frosts last spring with the result that the budding fruit trees were absolutely protected and several millions of dollars were saved to the growers. The success of orchard heating in Colorado, therefore, will be discussed at the coming apple congress.

It is highly probable that arrangements will be made at the apple congress for the holding of a national apple show in Denver in the autumn of 1911. An exposition of that character was held in Denver in January of the present year, and it attracted attention from all apple sections. Should such a show be held next year it will be the largest event of its kind ever held in the world.
